whether or not Richmond is to have a crematory at all.

The Council has so decided, but as it cannot be built in the air and it seems that there is no spot of ground where the garbage-destroyer can rest in peace, it really begins to look as if the establishment of such an institution is not to be accomplished within the near future. Many people believe that the Board will stick to the almshouse lot.

Thief Into the City.

Mr. C. M. Bennett, a well-known citizen of Henrico county, has made a name for himself among police circles of this city. It was on Wednesday that a negro, giving his name as George Lewis approached Mr. Bennett's place and attempted to sell the animal on which he rode. The negro at first wanted $50 for the horse, hut finally came down to $15, when Mr. Bennett became suspicious that the animal had been stolen. Just what to do he did not know, so he kept the prospective norse-seller engaged in conversation until a friend came up who had been hunting. He asked the newcomer to let him have the gun, and upon receiving the weapon levelled it at Lewis and marched him to the city. He carried his prisoner to the Second police-station and turned him over to the officers.

Before reaching their destination the negro offered to give the horse and his watch to Mr. Bennett if he would let him go, but his tempting offers were not accepted. Mr. C. M. Bennett, a well-known citizen Tribunal for Creating Disorder. William H. Whitlock, manager of the hobby-horse apparatus at the corner of Foushee and Canal streets, was before the Justice at the Police Court yesterday morning on the charge of creating disorder by running the merry-go-round to the annoyance of the neighborhood. About twenty witnesses from the vicinity were present, among them Messrs. Charles W. Branch, A. M. Lyon, C. F. Cross, Robert Armstead. A. W. Lee, E. P. Hudgins, William Gibson, Leroy J. Grant.

Mr. Samuel M. Page appeared for Mr. Whitlock and stated that he was acting as the agent for Mr. A. J. Barker, who was out of the city. He promised if the case was dismissed that the hobby-horses would be removed yesterday.

Justice Crutchfield said he had no authority to order the removal without a hearing, but if this course were satisfactory to all parties he would dismiss the case, and this was done.

Tomlinson, who served the other four warrants and has been working up the case, was preparing to leave the city on important business.

Mr. Dashieil was placed in custody of Officer Farley, and after taking dinner at Rueger's with his counsel, appeared at the Police Court at 5 o'clock, when an application for bail was heard before Police-Justice Crutchfield.

when counsel for the accused were asked if they were ready. Mr. Page said his side were exceedingly anxious to have the case come to trial at once. It was not often that a man was circumstanced as their client was. There seemed more behind these cases than appeared on the surface, and counsel asked the aid of the Court and the Commonwealth to secure all the papers necessary. They had sent a subpana duces tecum for certain books and papers of the firm that Mr. Dashiell had formerly been with. When he left that firm it was with the understanding that he should have access to any of the books and papers he desired. Since that time trouble had arisen, and that permission had been withdrawn.

Mr. Cutchins said they would go into the case upon an application for bail, but if they could get certain papers he thought his Henor would dismiss it before they got through.

WOULD HAVE THE OFFICE BROUGHT.

Commonwealth's Attorney Smith said that many intimations had been thrown out by the counsel for the accused which were in the form of a defence.

Mr. Cutchins insisted that they had made no defence unless questions which they had asked drew out answers that reflected on some one, and that was a defence.

Mr. Smith wanted answered the question, "Are you ready or not?" He would, if necessary, he said, have the whole office of J. Thempson Brown & Co.—books, clerks, papers, and all—dumped into the court-room.

clerks, papers, and all—dumped into the court-room.

Mr. Page replied: "That's all we want."
At this juncture Mr. LeRoy E. Brown appeared in court with two official envelopes filled with paper, the subpense duces tecum having been served on him by Sergeant Cosby, who was accompanied to the office of J. Thompson Brown & Co. by Mr. Cobb, Mr. Dashiell's partner, and formerly one of the book-keepers for J. Thompson Brown & Co.

MR. BROWN WAS THE SIAND.

Mr. Reven was the first witness clam.

The action of the Board of Aldermen on Wednesday night in reconsidering and tabling the resolution of the Common Council placing the crematory on the lot on St. Paul's street, and then adopting a measure providing that a joint committee be appointed to confer with the Board of Health and Health Committee in regard to a site for the garbage-furnace, seems to have practically staved of the erection of the much-abused crematory for a short while at least.

The Common Council will act upon the resolution of the Board at a special meeting to be held this evening. If it should concur in the resolution the paper will then go before the Mayor for his approval. In case the latter should append his signature to the resolution the heads of both banches of the Council will appoint their members of the concell will appoint their

WANTED TO FIND THE ORIGINAL.

WANTED TO FIND THE OBIGINAL.

The examination of Mr. Brown was continued by Mr. Cutchings. The witness inquired about the $450 note, he said, in order that he might find the original note. He sold the original note and told the parties he had $200 with which to pay it.

Here Mr. Brown's examination was suspended in order that Mr. N. M. Nelson, who was quite unwell, might be put on the stand.

MR. NELSON PAID THE NOTE.

Mr. Nelson was handed the alleged forged note, which he had produced in court when he first answerd to his name, and asked when he first saw it. He said he had first seen it yesterday morning about 11 o'clock, that he did not now own it, and that he had paid it with Dr. Dashiell's mency. The latter, he said, came to him, gave him the money, and asked him to take the note up.

In answer to a question from Mr. Smith witness said he had intended tearing the note up, but had destroyed a check in place of it and had produced the note in answer to a process of the Court.

STATEMENT OF PARSONS.

STATEMENT OF PARSONS.

Parsons was then placed on the stand, and upon being shown the alleged forged paper said that both the signature and the endorsement were his, but that he had never signed a note for that amount. Previous to the loan of $350 he had never given a note except for $200. When they fell due he paid the interest and renewed them. He was never notified that a note for $450 was due. The first he heard of it was Mr. Dashiell sure for him and told him about it. He told Mr. Dashiell he had settled it with Mr. Brown and Mr. Dashiell said that was all right. He had, he continued, had no transaction except with Dashiell and got no money. He did not remember signing any paper except the note. He did not see the alleged forged note until Wednesday. Then he saw it at the bank. Then he did not dony the signature, but was doubtful about it until he signed his name.

He was asked to write his signature be

He was asked to write his signature because they wanted to compare the two. He gave the note in question to Mr. Dashiell at Mr. Brown's office, but it was, he insisted, for only $200.

In answer to a serious of questions from Mr. Cutchins Parsons insisted that he had never signed any paper but the note, and that he had received no money.

Here Mr. Cutchens handed him the paper first shown to Mr. Brown when he was placed on the stand and which was gotten out of pigeon-hole "P." This proved to be a receipt from Parsons to J. Thompson Brown & Co. for $10 and dated July 24, 1890.

What between the rigid questioning by the Court and Mr. Cutchings Parson's memory was so refreshed that he recollected that when the note was signed his wife went to the office with him and they signed a deed, his wife having been examined apart.

Brown & Co. and endorsed in the firm name by Mr. Dashiell. At that time Mr Dashiell had the right to sign the firm name in firm transactions. There was no record of the check on the firm's books. The check seemed to have been deposited with the Merchants' and Planters' Savings Bank, and by them collected from the Planters' Bank. The firm kept no account with the First National Bank, but he had seen checks of Mr. Dashiell's on that institutiou. The Parsons matter, he testified, was a firm matter, but the check was never audited on the books. Neither he nor his brother ever made a transaction in the name of the firm on individual account without mentioning it to the other partners the day before or very soon after.

partners the day before or very soon after.

THE MYERS'S TRANSACTION.

"How about the Myers's transaction," asked Mr. Ellett. "Did your brother mention it to the other members of the firm right away?"

John Thompson Brown & Co. testified the witness had nothing to do with that transaction. Two of, the members were interested in the purchase of the property. The Myers property was bought and, sold before any, monep passed. The check for the commissions to J. Thompson Brown & Co. was deposited to his (witnesse's) individual credit, and he afterwards gave his personal check for the amount. He was not positive as to whose order the check was made payable. It was some time after the Meyers transaction that it was mentioned to the other partners. He had discounted notes that came to the firm in which he had an individual interest, but the other members were always advised of it.

Mr. Brown was subjected to a rigid crossof it.

Mr. Brown was subjected to a rigid crossexamination, the object of which was to show that members of the firm were accustomed to make individual transactions, in which the others did not share.

Mr. Ellett started to ask about the Hubbard case, but the Commonwealth objected and the question was ruled out.

THE QUESTION ARGUED.

At the conclusion of Mr. Brown's remarks Commonwealth's Attorney Smith opposed the granting of bail. Counsel for the accused, he said, bad rested the case on the Commonwealth's testimony and none of the evidence had been questioned.

Mr. Page concluded that Parsons had stultified himself §and that it had been demonstrated that Mr. Brown's memory was at fault, and Mr. Ellett argued for bail simply as a matter of feeling. Mr.
Cutchins concluded that the winness Parsons seemed to be honest, but he was evidently mistaken, as his evidence was conflicting.

Why Mr. Brown Did Not Appear.
In response to a witness subpcone issued by Police-Justice Crutchfield Mr. LeRoy E. Brown appeared before the Police Court yesterday morning and stated that the reason why the paper could not be served upon him in time for him to have appeared at the examination of the witnesses in the Dashiell case on Tuesday morning was because he was out of the city on other business.

A RAILROAD HORROR

A BRIDGE INTO A CREEK.

Injured-The Scene at the Wreck

Charlotte, N. C., August 27.—One of the most disastrous railroad wreeks known in the annals of this State occurred this morning about 2 o'clock at Beston's Bridge, two miles west of Statesville, on the Western North Carolina road. Passenger train No. 9, known as the fast-mail, which is made up at Salisbury, pulled out on time (1 A. M.) loaded with passengers. It was composed of a baggage- and mailcar, second and first-class coaches, Pullman sleeper, and Superintendent Bridger's private car Daisy. This sleeper, which comes from Goldsboro', usually contains a good number of passengers from northern points, and last night was no exception.

PLUNORD IN THE CREEK. Two of of popular young people—Mr. W. S. Haliburton and Miss Emily Gammon—were united in marriage at St. Phillips's Episcopal church this afternoon, and left on the evening train for an extended northern trip.

A DISMAL MIGHT.

The night was dismal, and to add to the horror of the situation the water in the creek was up. It was only through the most herote efforts of those who had hurried to the scene of the scene of the wreck that the injured were not drowned. The accident was caused by the spreading of the rails. The bridge was not injured and trains are running on schedule time. Twenty dead bodies are now lying in a warehouse at Statesville. The injured are having the best of care at private residences and hotels.

"Thank God, I am safe from the Bestonbridge wreck and that I saved Auditor Sanderlin. Many killed."

GOVERNOR HOLT'S SYMPATRIES. GOVERNOR HOLT'S STMPATHIES.

Governor Holt replied, expressing his heartfelt thanks at the escape and asking that his sympathies be expressed to the wounded and bereaved. It was surmised that Auditor Sanderlin was worse hurt than the telegram indicated. He telegraphed his wife that he was badly hurt, but not fatally injured.

ONLY FOUR UNINJURED. Of the eighty-five persons on the train only four escaped uninjured, and these fortunate ones were all in the private car of Superintendent R. R. Bridgers. The entire train crew, save the conductor, were killed. Some of the people killed were Tennesseeans on their way home from Morehead City.

Telegrams to-night state that the condition of Auditor Sauderlin, who was wounded at the terrible railway accident near Statesville, is much worse than was at first reported. His wife went there this sternees.

VIENNA, August 27.—A terrible thunderstorm swept over the Trieste district yesterday, causing several fatalities. Lightning struck the church at Tualis, on the italian frontier, while the building was crowded with women. A fearful scene of panic followed, the women and children shricking and praying on their knees or else rushing wildly for the church doors.

The priest celebrating mass acted in a most praiseworthy and courageous manner, and vigorously reassuring the terrified women succeeded in restoring order. Subsequently it was found that three women, who were supposed to have fainted from fright, had actually been killed by the lightning which struck the church. At Pian a hunting party was struck by lightning during the progress of the storm, and one of the party was killed on the spot and four others practically paralyzed by the electric shock.

Beautiful metallic shelves and files for the books and papers have been put up around the walls, and the heavy, musty records which heretofore have exerted the lawyers' strength can now be moved back and forth with the greatest facility, as all the shelves are made of dust-proof rollers, which save the binding of the books and also the waste of muscle.

It is estimated that by the present improvements there will be ample room for all the books and papers for the next eight years to come.

The shelves and pigeon-holes were put in by the Fenton Metallic Manufacturing Company, of Jameston, N. Y., and are really wonders in the way of inventions.

The building formerly occupied by the State newspaper will shortly be transformed into an Auction-House by Mr. J. H. Valentine, who has associated with himself Mr. Jno. E. Laughton, Jr., the pioneer and veteran auctioneer of Richmond. Mr. Laughton has had untold experience in this business, having, as he said a short time ago, sold almost everything imaginable from a coffin to an elephant. He will make the walls of the old building ring in the daily pursuit of his business.

Parents having sons and daughters to educate should give careful consideration of the announcement made in the advertisement of Frofesser W. H. Sadler, president of Sadler's Bryant & Stratton Business College, of Baltimore, Md. This oldestablished and high-standard institution is now entering upon its twenty-seventh year of usefulness and commands not only the patronage and confidence of the citzens of Baltimore, but of the entire South.

Going Abroad.

The Richmond Hydro-Carbon Heater Company has applied for letters patent in England, France, Germany, and Belgium. One of our city stove companies will soon begin the manufacture of this household necessity. Roy Childrey has returned from his trip to Europe and will be glad to see his friends at 117 east Main street.

Looking & His PHOTOGRAPH. No wonder they regard his photograph with so much attention, for when he had it taken he was attired in one of our SUITS. He looks like one of the most the suit only cost him $10 and it hecomes him as well as a tailor-made suit that cost three times the money. There are three kinds of bargains-big, bigger, and biggest. It is no exaggeration to say that ordinary bargains fade into significance alongside of this one.
